We Want to See Jesus

In today's gospel Jesus' disciples tell him that some Greeks wanted to see Him. [1] 'The word for "see" is derived from the Greek ὁρᾶω which means more than glancing at. They wanted to become acquainted with Jesus, to have a deeper experience of Him, to know Him more intimately.' [2] 'At first Jesus' response to their request sounds good: "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified". But then as he goes on, we become uncomfortably aware he has a different definition of glory; his glory is all bound up with his suffering and death.' [1]

'Sometimes we want to see Jesus on our terms. However, seeing Jesus is a way to be followed, a truth to be embodied, a life to be lived. We all know that dying is about more than our physical death. We die a thousand deaths throughout our lifetime: the loss of a loved one, a relationship, health, opportunities, a dream; all deaths we didn't want or ask for. Other times we choose our losses and deaths. We give up parts of ourselves for another. We change our beliefs and values so that we can be more authentically ourselves. And sometimes there are things we need to let go of, things we cling to that deny us the fullness of life we want and God offers: fear, anger or resentment, regret and disappointment, guilt, the need to be right, approval. It's being a grain of wheat that falls into the ground and dies so that it might bear much fruit. That's where we see him. It's the letting go, the emptying, the leaving behind, and the dying that makes space for new life to arise.' [3]

'The seed is in the ground.

Now may we rest in hope

While darkness does its work.

Often, I associate the idea of hope with light, and so the connection to darkness caught me off guard. But in the life of a seed, darkness is indeed the context of hope, where hope must be greatest, before the realisation of that hope opens into the first glimpses of light and bits of green.' [4]
