Eternal Life

'Unfortunately, many Christians believe that the motive for divine incarnation was merely to fix what we humans had messed up. This "atonement theory" of salvation treats Christ as a mere Plan B. According to the 13th century philosopher and theologian Dun Scotus, the Incarnation was God's Plan A, his plan of perfect love. The 'atonement theory' leads us to believe that God will love us if and when we change. In fact, God loves us so that we can change. What empowers change, what makes us desire change is the inner experience of love. God is always and consistently acting out of supreme love and not merely re-acting to fallen human nature or using Jesus as the only worthy sacrifice of atonement to Himself. "God loved the world so much that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him may have eternal life." Believing in Jesus -which has much more to do with following his way of love than affirming correct doctrines - is first and foremost living a life of love. [1]

In John 17:3 Jesus says, "This is eternal life: that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent." To know and to be known; to love and to be loved: these are our deepest longings. When we re-locate either by choice or by necessity, we feel the pain of not being known. We can also experience a sense of isolation even with people we encounter every day. Jesus himself knew the pain of not being known. "Have I been with you so long, and you still do not know me, Philip?" (John 14:9) 'When we are with someone who knows us, 'the eyes of the other receiving me, delighting in me, enjoying me and looking at me – make me feel like me and my best me! When we allow ourselves to be perfectly received, to be totally gazed upon by the One who knows everything and receives everything, we are indestructible. From God's side, the gift is total, once and for all and forever. God's face is turned towards us absolutely. It is we who have to learn to return the gaze.' [1] And when we do, we experience eternal life now; we 'touch eternity.' [2]

"God does not love us because we are good, God loves us because God is good." [1]
