to some injustice. The lender rectifies the situation by forgoing the demand for repayment. In each of these cases, non-violent responses undermine enmity and open possibilities for new ways of relating. In this way the Mosaic law is fulfilled.

The last section deals with the command to love the neighbour. Nowhere in the Scriptures is there a command to hate the enemy. The question was whether one was obliged to act lovingly toward those outside the covenant community. Jesus' answer is affirmative. Disciples are to set no bounds on their love, just as God sets no bounds on the divine love.

PRAYING WITH SCRIPTURE

Pray for the grace to be able to say, "I have no enemies."

Ask Jesus to show you how to imitate God in setting no bounds on your love.

How do members of your faith community strengthen one another for transforming enmity into love?

Men's Rites of Passage

"The most significant 5 days of my life."

"Radical, heart-thumping, liberating transformation."

"A total immersion into honest male truthfulness... truly a personal transformation."

"Deep, labyrinthine and magical."

Please Note - Re: Fundraisers

This is to clarify the position regarding fund-raising for charity in our two parishes: Whilst we appreciate there are many worthy causes in need of assistance, we MUST restrict our own parish collections and fund-raising events to the WCMAD (We Can Make A Difference) projects, Mary's Meals and Lyndale Centre only. If any individual or group wishes to aid any other charity or cause, they should do this privately and not on church premises or via the Tea Clubs.

Thank you, Fr. Anton

HAVING NO ENEMIES

It is with great sadness that we received news on 24 January 2011 of the death of Don Samuel Ruiz, who had been bishop of the Diocese of San Cristobal de las Casas in southern Mexico from 1960 to 2000.

Don Samuel is well known for having empowered the indigenous people of his diocese and for his role as mediator in the conflict between the Zapatista rebels and the Mexican government in the 1990s. For this, he had received many death threats.

In an interview, he was asked how he had come to live so completely the command to love one's enemies, when he had so many. He gave a puzzled look and responded, "I have no enemies." It was the interviewer's turn to be puzzled, as he had arrived for the interview in a bulletproof van, accompanied by three large, armed bodyguards, supplied by the Mexican government, at their insistence! He explained further, "There are some who want to make themselves enemy to me, but I have no enemies."

In today's gospel, Jesus instructs his disciples on how to live in just such a way. Jesus begins by quoting the law of retaliation in Leviticus 24:20, which puts limits on acts of retribution, so as to curtail cycles of vengeance. The principle he puts forth is "do not retaliate against the evildoer". Jesus is not advising his disciples to let evildoers freely abuse them; rather, he directs them not to retaliate by the same means. They are to respond with an action that confronts the evildoer non-violently, thus breaking the cycle of violence and opening up a new possibility by which gestures of reconciliation can be reciprocated.

Jesus gives us four concrete examples. The first involves a backhanded slap intended to humiliate (only the right hand would be used to strike another). Turning the other cheek is a provocative response that robs the aggressor of the power to shame and instead the shame falls on the perpetrator. The second concerns a debtor, who stands naked in court, handing over not only the outer cloak demanded as collateral but also the undergarments, a shocking act that places shame on the creditor. The third instance likely involves a Roman soldier who has compelled a local person to carry his pack. The latter destabilises the situation by creating a dilemma for the soldier, who would face punishment for
